Jackelyne Sosa is currently a Cancer Navigator for the County of Los Angeles Department of Health Services. She works closely with the Clinical Social Work Department and Oncology Department at Harbor UCLA Medical Center to provide patients with needed resources and follow them throughout their treatment. Jackelyne is a native Angeleno and a first-generation UCLA alumna who received her Bachelor of Arts in Psychology. Upon graduating from UCLA, Jackelyne went on to work at a senior living center to work as an activity leader for seniors diagnosed with dementia. While working there, she received an Extra Mile Award for spearheading a fundraiser in benefit of the Alzheimer's Association. Jackelyne's desires to be a lifelong learner and provide compassionate, preventative care have inspired her to pursue a Master in Public Health degree. She is thrilled to be part of the UCLA family once more and looks forward to flourishing into a leader among today's diverse and expanding health care and public fields.
